

Music and Delicious Edibles in the Gardens

Beautiful gardens are wonderfully complemented by live music and delicious food, and this year's Tour has options for both. This year musicians and singers will be performing at seven gardens. Here is a list of the musical offerings that are available on Sunday, May 5, 2019.

Music in the Gardens

#4—Anni Jensen & Carol Manahan's Richmond garden: 11:00 Start the day off with a morning raga on sitar and sarod, performed by Richard Morrison.

#8—Prospect Sierra Elementary School's El Cerrito garden: 11:00-12:00 and 1:00-2:00 Bret Turner will play acoustic guitar; 12:00-1:00 A duo of woodwinds, with Fern Burch on clarinet and Kara Koffron on flute, will play classical music.

#16—Robin and Neil Heyden's Oakland garden: 11:00-12:00 Black Eyed Possum will perform old time mountain music, featuring fiddle, guitar and banjo.

#20—Stefanie Pruegel's San Leandro garden: 12:30-1:30 and 2:00-3:00 Come and hear the Infusions, a quartet of guitars, bass, and delightful four part harmonizing vocals.

More Music in the Gardens

#30–Maria Sargent’s Danville garden: 11:00-1:00 Mike Thelen will play acoustic guitar and sing songs from the ‘60s and ‘70s.

#32–Anne Chambers and Ed McAlpine’s Moraga garden: 1:00-2:00 Enjoy a performance by the award-winning Stanley Middle School’s “Jazz Messengers.”

#34–Lauren Kindorf’s Clayton garden: 10:00-11:45 Mother/daughter duo Deborah Kuhl Wendt and Linda Benyahia will perform an eclectic mix of bluegrass, jazz standards, Americana and French songs on guitar, banjo, accordion, mandolin and fiddle.

Lunch in the Garden

Make San Lorenzo High School your lunchtime stop!

If you’d like to have a delicious lunch while shopping for native plants, supporting education programs at a high school, wandering through an established native plant garden, and enjoying a series of talks, visit San Lorenzo High School’s Native Plant Garden and Nursery; see Garden #24 on page 49. There you will be able to purchase Mexican food from 11:00-3:00 from cheerful, helpful, native plant-loving students.
